

Personal bios

Alina Karlsen (she/her) is originally from Norway, but moved to the Netherlands in 2016. She is completing a MSc in International Relations and Diplomacy at Leiden University in The Hague. Alina takes special interest in feminist foreign policy and the gendered aspects of international relations, both in theory and practice. She has internship experience from the International Criminal Court and UNDP Oslo Governance Centre, and work experience from several NGOs.

Tess de Rooij (she/her) grew up in Amsterdam. She is pursuing her master's in Health, Medicine & Society in Cambridge. She has a special interest in gender inequality related to health. Tess has worked with governmental bodies including the Dutch Ministry of Employment and Social Affairs, as a media literacy guest teacher for Dutch youth and for several politics and arts collectives including happyChaos, European Horizons and Students for Global Health.